Pita

Eaten by the early humans in Stone Age and firmly rooted in the Middle East. Fast forward to 2020. We've travelled the world and bumped into it just about anywhere.

In a slightly different shape or going by a different name perhaps, but still 'a good old-fashioned, yummy flatbread'.

In short: the pita is a keeper. A classic. An Icon. However, we decided it was time to push the boundaries of this staple dish and re-interpret this world famous classic.

Introducing: Barouche

Pita is our holy grail. Our thing, our core. It's at the base of every dish we create. It's our white culinary canvas. We make it from scratch in all our restaurants. But what's in it, might just surprise you.

We fill our pitas with the greatest flavours we discovered along the road. Our taste buds have tasted the world, and so will you!

The end result: an eclectic culinary collection of different flavours bundled into a pocket bread. Move over conventional pita, here's the next generation!
